Clinical Trial Opportunity for People with Alopecia Areata (Ages 18–55)*

Are you living with alopecia areata and looking for new therapeutics options? You may be eligible to participate in a clinical research study evaluating the potential of a new therapy.

Researchers are currently enrolling participants to assess the safety, tolerability & early effectiveness of an investigational medication called ALD-102 Solution, administered through a small injection into the skin.

Study Locations (Please email for more information)
